

Dear Friends of Second Church,

November 30, 2022

If you are free in the late afternoon this coming Sunday, I hope you'll come to Alexander's annual Piano Serenade in the Sanctuary — a long-standing 2CC tradition and a wonderful way to enter a little more quietly into the spirit of the Christmas season.

It's also available both live and later on via the church's YouTube channel, 2cc Greenwich, but I strongly recommend coming in person if you can.

I've always found something especially mysterious and wonderful about the Sanctuary at night.

In the daytime, the only time I seem to notice the candles is when someone forgets to light them. They are pretty much for show.

Not so at night.

And in a season that is so deeply grounded in a story of light and darkness, it makes sense to be mindful of how the light orients and re-oriens us.

That is the work of the whole season, with its powerful impetus toward reconciliation and peace, joy and new life. These are all expressions of what it looks like to be re-oriented toward God.

The lights of the season remind us of the divine light that shone at Christmas, and which invites us even now to live as redeemed people—grateful, joyful, and free.

See you in church,

Join us this season...
